Scope of Practice

37-16-102(7): "Practice of selling, dispensing, and fitting hearing aids" means the evaluation or measurement of the powers or range of human hearing by means of an audiometer and a visual examination of the ear and canal or by any other means devised and the consequent selection, adaption, sale, dispensing, or fitting of hearing aids intended to compensate for hearing loss, including eyeglass hearing aids and their fittings, and the making of an impression of the ear and the subsequent selection of a proper ear mold, but does not include batteries, cords, or accessories.

Physicians exempted. Audiologists now are exempted under SB 132. An audiologist's scope of practice includes making ear impressions, fitting hearing protection or prosthetic devices, and monitoring the continuous use of hearing aids. (24.222.525 ARM).

2011 Legislation that Became Law and Impacts Board or Profession

- HB 94, sponsored by Rep. Arntzen at the request of the Department of Labor and Industry, generally revises reciprocity and other board functions.
- SB 132, sponsored by Sen. Essman, allows audiologists to sell hearing aids without hearing aid dispenser license.

Summary of Responses from Survey as made as of October 3, 2011:

7 responses from licensees.

Main issues:

- Concern about audiologists no longer having to have a license from the Hearing Aid Dispensers Board -- an issue aggravated by no change in the requirements of the Board having 2 members who are audiologists with a license under the hearing aid board and the cost to remaining hearing aid specialists who are expecting a huge fee increase.
- Differences between audiologists who specialize in the hearing aspect and hearing aid dispensers who specialize in equipment and fitting hearing aids.
