I had a guy explain to me how the milk date in Montana works. Really it is a fake date. I am sure there has been some kind of advancement in the dairy industry since 1980. He went on to explain how most other states use an expiration date that makes sense. He also said no one can bring milk into our state because of the short date therefore keeping the price higher. That is wrong, why would you feel good about over charging Montana Families. In my business there is lots of competition why do you protect Meadow gold and Dairy gold they are not even a Montana companies. I don't understand politics but overcharging Montana milk consumers to protect big companies seems to be how it works. Please give me an expiration date so I know what I am drinking and I hope it helps my pocket book.

Thank you

Jordan Summerfield.
