A Little Background on The Fort Belknap Indian Reservation

The Fort Belknap Indian Reservation is homeland to the Gros Ventre and the Assiniboiné Tribes. It is located forty miles south of the Canadian border and twenty miles north of the Missouri River, which is on the route of the Lewis and Clark Expedition. It is also the fourth largest Indian Reservation in Montana.

The Fort Belknap Indian Reservation was created by an Act of Congress on May 1, 1888 and the Fort Belknap Agency was established at its present location, four miles southeast of the present township of Harlem, Montana.

Tribal members accepted the Indian Reorganization Act on October 27, 1934. Members of Fort Belknap adopted a constitution on October 19, 1935 and a corporate charter on August 25, 1937, in accordance with Section 16 of the Indian Reorganization Act of June 18, 1934. The Fort Belknap Indian Community Council is recognized as the governing body on the Fort Belknap Reservation. They are charged with the duty of protecting the health and general welfare of the Fort Belknap Indian Community.

The Fort Belknap Indian Community Council consists of 11 members. First there is the President and the Vice President, who are elected to serve a four-year term. Then, there are eight Council Members, consisting of four Gros Ventre and four Assiniboiné members who are elected every two years. Finally, the President and Vice President appoint a Secretary Treasurer, who serves four years with them.

The Fort Belknap Indian Reservation encompasses an area consisting of 675,147 acres, which extends approximately 28 miles east and west, 35 miles north and south. The land is mostly rolling plains and the main industry is agriculture, consisting of small cattle ranches, raising alfalfa hay for feed and larger dry land farms. The Little Rocky Mountain, located at the southern end of the reservation, has two small communities which are Hays and Lodge Pole. Hays is located at the southwest portion of the reservation which has both a public school, grades (7-12) and a Catholic School, Saint Paul's Mission, grades (K-6). Lodge Pole is located at the southeast portion of the reservation which has a public school, grades (K-6).

Fort Belknap has a tribal membership of over 7,000 enrolled members.

The Great Seal of the Fort Belknap Reservation

The emblem of the Fort Belknap Reservation's Seal, as illustrated by the traditional shield symbolizes the shield's protection of the two tribes from the past, present, and future; the loss of tribal culture, tribal identity, and tribal land base. Individual and tribal interests and future development will also prosper and grow under the shield's protection.

The Circular shape of the shield symbolizes life itself, as perceived by the Indian belief, of constant cycle of life. Each living thing is dependent on each other for life. The killing of the buffalo enables the Indian to live and grow and when his mortal remains return to the Earth, it serves as food for the grasses of the prairie which in turn feeds the buffalo, thus ensuring the constant cycle of life.

The four directions and the four seasons are symbolized in the use of the four colors: Red-Summer, Yellow-Fall, White-Winter, and Green-Spring.

Symbolizing the existence of two tribes, the Gros Ventre and Assiniboiné on the reservation, who function as a whole, is the buffalo skull. The Colors divide it, yet the skull remains as one. The skull has a jagged line from horn to horn representing the Milk River, a major tributary of the Missouri.

Snake Butte is illustrated above the skull. The butte is a well-known landmark for Indian tribes throughout the North. The spring located on the north central part of the butte, is one of the few natural fresh water springs in the area.

Snake Butte is also the place to seek out visions. Many tried but very few succeeded in acquiring sacred power at this place.
