PREFACE

During the 1995 Legislative Session, 1096 bills were debated, compared to 1213 during the 1993 Session and 1578 during the 1991 Session. Of these 1096 bills, almost one quarter related to the use of the state's natural resources--with water quality, private property rights and public lands issues receiving the most attention. A summary of this legislation, by subject, is provided below.

Forestry: SB 122 revises the process of granting right-of-way easements on state lands by eliminating certain requirements. SB 347 authorizes the Department of State Lands to negotiate reciprocal access to isolated state forest lands. HB 201 establishes an annual timber sale requirement of 45-55 million board feet for the state timber sale program. HB 274 grants the Department of State Lands broader discretion to expedite sales of state timber in emergency situations and in cases of limited access. HB 501 requires a written undertaking to cover damages that may result from wrongfully enjoining or restraining the Board of Land Commissioners.

Hazardous Waste: SB 349 requires monitoring and telemetering service at commercial hazardous waste incinerators. SB 386 deregulates underground storage tanks that are 1,100 gallons or less. HB 215 requires a disclosure statement for permits issued, reissued, or renewed for hazardous waste management facilities and establishes criteria for denial of or conditions to a permit

Montana Environmental Policy Act: SB 288 exempts the legislature and legislative activities from MEPA review. Depending on the jurisdiction, SB 288 clarifies and/or elevates the burden proof to clear and convincing evidence for a party challenging an agency's decision not to conduct an EIS. Specifically, a "court may not set aside the agency's decision [a decision not to conduct an EIS] unless it finds that there is clear and convincing evidence that the decision was arbitrary or capricious or not in compliance with law." SB 347 specifically notes that the Department of State Lands "is not required to analyze or consider the potential impacts of activities that may occur on private or federal lands in conjunction with or as a result of granting access". HB 274 exempts certain emergency and limited access opportunity timber sales on state forest lands from MEPA review. SB 347, also potentially limits MEPA's impact analysis for negotiated reciprocal access agreements involving isolated tracts of state forest land. SB 231 substantively amended MEPA to incorporate private property right considerations into the MEPA review process. SB 231 requires that if a proposed state agency action involves the regulation of private property, the agency, in its evaluation of the economic and social impacts of the proposed action, must evaluate the regulatory impacts the action has on private property rights. Furthermore, in evaluating alternatives to the proposed action, state agencies are required to analyze alternatives that reduce, minimize, or eliminate the regulation of private property rights.

Mining: HB 338 amends the metal mine reclamation laws to provide for reclamation of open pits and rock faces to the extent economically and technologically feasible.

Private Property: SB 231 requires a Montana Environmental Policy Act analysis to specifically include alternatives designed to reduce, mitigate, or eliminate regulatory restrictions in every action directly involving private property. HB 311 directs the Montana Attorney General to develop guidelines to identify and evaluate proposed agency actions that have takings implications. These guidelines must take into account the U.S. Constitution, the taking or damaging clause of the Montana Constitution, and relevant court interpretations.

Superfund: SB 200 clarifies a fiduciary's liability under the state superfund law. SB 382 revises cleanup standards, provides for voluntary cleanup plans, establishes a pilot program of with a new proportionate liability scheme, and requests a study on joint and several liability.

Water: SB 204 clarifies enforcement authority under the public water supply laws. SB 330 changes the definition of high quality waters, and changes the definition of interested person. SB 331 revamps water quality standards and requires treatment standards be economically, environmentally, and technologically feasible. SB 346 allows the board of health and environmental sciences to temporarily modify water quality standards. SB 362 exempts certain activities from ground water discharge permit requirements. SB 371 establishes criteria for outstanding resource waters and codifies and expands non-significant activities. SB 387 expands water claims appeal process and adjudication and establishing a water adjudication advisory committee. HB 137 provides for notice of availability of decrees to be sent to the successors of the original owners of water rights. HB 472, although not strictly a water quality issue, addresses instream flow; under certain conditions, an appropriator may apply to temporarily change an existing appropriative water right to instream flow.

Zoning and Subdivisions: HB 292 requires a written statement on the conditions of subdivision approval. HB 358 changes the protest requirements for adoption of zoning districts, regulations, and boundaries. HB 473 revises subdivision laws by changing the environmental assessment, bonding, and park dedication requirements.

Miscellaneous: SB 234 reorganizes the state's environmental and natural resource agencies. The thrust of SB 234 is to consolidate the regulatory functions of the various environmental and natural resources agencies into one agency, the Department of Environmental Quality, and to create a one-stop permitting process. SB 234 also centralizes land management activities into one agency, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation. HJR 10 requests the Montana Environmental Quality Council to conduct a study of the compliance and enforcement programs of the state's natural resource and environmental programs. SJR 15 urges the EPA to quickly proceed with and accept Montana's applications for primacy for certain environmental programs. SB 366 revises the major facility siting act. HB 2 a) appropriates RIT funding for an MSU extension service pollution prevention program; b) does not appropriate available federal funds to Department of Health and Environmental Sciences for extra full time employees in air and water quality. HB 502 clarifies the requirement for a radon disclosure statement with the purchase or sale of inhabitable real property. HB 521 requires administrative and local agencies to justify adoption of rules that are more stringent than corresponding federal regulations.

The Environmental Quality Council (EQC) prepared the Final Status of Natural Resource Legislation in the 54th Montana Legislature to provide a brief summary of natural resource legislation for legislators, lobbyists and the public. The bills in the status are organized by subject, number, and status (passed or failed). Each bill entry includes the bill number, short title, committee hearings and relevant votes. Several bills are included in more than one category; for example, underground storage tank legislation is listed under both hazardous materials management and water quality.

For further information on these bills or others, we recommend consulting the Legislative Council's publication Final History and Status, published in July, which contains all legislative action taken on all bills. In addition, the EQC's Montana Index of Environmental Permits, published in the fall after each session, provides a comprehensive list of the permits and licenses needed to conduct activities that might effect Montana's environment.

The Montana Environmental Policy Act, enacted in 1971, charges the EQC with researching and reviewing state regulations and policies affecting Montana's environment, and recommending measures to promote the general welfare of present and future generations of Montana. For more information on EQC publications and activities, contact the Environmental Quality Council, Capitol Station, Helena, MT 59620, (406) 444-3742.
