Richard Cauchi is a Health Program Director at the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) Denver office, where he directs projects and research on health finance and costs, health insurance and pharmaceuticals. He joined the staff in 1997. He has written issue reports and presentations on subjects including state insurance reforms, pharmaceutical purchasing and assistance, cost containment and state responses to health reforms. In the past few years he provided special briefings on health policy at national meetings of legislators in California, Georgia, Illinois, Louisiana, New York City, Texas, and Washington, D.C. as well as 20+ state legislative committees. He has addressed the State Legislators Leadership Foundation, the Council on Health Care Economics and Policy, the State Attorneys General Program at Columbia University Law School and the Mexico Federal Legislature. He has been cited in the Wall Street Journal, the New York Times, Modern Healthcare, MSNBC and National Public Radio.

Prior to joining NCSL, Richard spent 25 years working on policy analysis and tracking bills in the Massachusetts State Legislature, including a 7-year stint working on Medicaid, health and human services budgets at the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute in Boston. He majored in history at Tufts University in Massachusetts and also completed graduate courses in Asian studies. He presently resides in Wheat Ridge, Colorado.
